Zoning body recommends medical office district

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission today recommended that a medical office district be established in the Bay St. Louis area.

The commission had been requested to study the proposed Bay St. Louis City Council.

In a resolution to the commission, the council stated it had previously sought to impose special use zoning for the area surrounding the new Hancock Medical Center facility and that a number of property owners in the neighborhood had objected to the proposed zoning change.

The resolution also said purpose of special use zoning is to accommodate need for support facilities for the new hospital and the inevitable change in the neighborhood.

Also, the commission feels a more restricted special use district will be less objectionable to area residents and more compatible with the existing neighborhood.

The commission voted to recommend the creation of the new district to be called a Medical Office District (MO-1) which would allow medical, dental, chiropractic, psychiatric and psychological offices.

A definition of an office, as a facility where professional services are rendered on an outpatient basis only, was also included in the motion.

In the new district there are no square footage lot size requirements. A minimum frontage of 25 feet is required.

The commission's recommendation will be considered at a future city council meeting.

A motion to establish a residential district fronting on Drinkwater Road as MO-1 was tabled for further study.

Second home tax rate up to local officials

By DENA BISNETTE
The attorney for the Hancock County Board of Supervisors today obtained a court order to allow a second home tax rate to be levied on second homes, which leaves the matter in the hands of local authorities.

Hancock County Tax Collector and Assessor Edward Martignoli today announced that he would be levying a second home tax rate of 14 percent on second homes.

A second home is defined as a home in which the owner does not reside for more than 180 days a year.

According to Martignoli, the rate passed last year provided a five percent tax break for owners of single family residences if those owners also occupied the property.

At the meeting, where the complaint was presented to the board, Martignoli explained that neither the State Tax Commission nor the Legislature provided him with guidance regarding second homes, although the Legislature does state that a second home is a home in which the owner does not reside for more than 180 days a year.

Martignoli said that any home clearly the owner's only or primary residence would not be subject to the second home tax.

He said he would be levying the 14 percent rate on second homes.

Dr. Marion J. Wolfe Sr. of Bay St. Louis was honored Wednesday when the city of Bay St. Louis presented him with a plaque in recognition of his many years of service to the community.

Making the presentation at the ceremony, which was attended by family, friends, hospital dignitaries and city and county officials, were Mayor George G. Gentry, Jr., Stanislaus High School, and Dr. Andrew Martignoli, Hancock Medical Center medical staff member.

"Dr. Wolfe has been a vital part of the medical community here in Hancock County for the past 53 years," said Martignoli, "and we appreciate his unselfish dedication and contributions to the people of the area."

Wolfe was born on May 5, 1906, in New Orleans, La. and attended Jefferson Davis Public School through the sixth grade, and Jesuit High School through the eighth grade. He completed his high school education at St. Stanislaus College, where he ranked first academically in the SSC graduating class of 1923.

He entered medicine at Tulane University and during his entire training there he did not miss one day of school.

While attending Tulane Medical Center, he ran cross-country and track and earned three medals. He was also a member of Alpha Omega Alpha, an honorary medical fraternity reserved for the top ten medical students in a graduating class. He graduated from Tulane in 1932, and spent two years of internship at Charity Hospital in New Orleans.

He then became a member of the Mississippi Medical Association and began practicing medicine in Bay St. Louis as a general practitioner on Sept. 1, 1933.

From his earliest years of practicing medicine, Dr. Wolfe always made house calls throughout Hancock County and did obstetric deliveries in the home, in addition to his regular office and hospital work.

He served as chief of staff at the old King's Daughter and Son Hospital and Hancock General Hospital. He and an associate, Dr. Edith Ballard, also began the first blood bank in Bay St. Louis at the end of World War II. He also served as president of the Merchants Bank and the Merchants Insurance Company.

In recognition of his tremendous contribution to his alma mater, Dr. Wolfe was inducted into the St. Stanislaus Hall of Fame in 1973, and on August 13, 1977, he received the American Legion Post 77 Health Award for his contributions above and beyond the "call of duty."

Port Commission to huddle on suit

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
A lawsuit in which Southland Enterprises, Inc. is seeking more than $60,000 from Hancock County and its Port and Harbor Commission is the scheduled topic at a special, closed-door commission meeting Thursday afternoon.

The commission is expected to meet in executive session to discuss the pending lawsuit. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the Port and Harbor Office near the intersection of U.S. 90 and Hwy. 903.

In the lawsuit, a complaint is judged against the county, plus interest, court costs and attorney's fees are being sought.

Southland was contracted by the commission to make aircraft taxiway and other improvements at Stennis International Airport.

The contract provided that a base of crushed, partially crushed or uncrushed granite aggregate bonded with either soil or fine aggregate be used, Southland claims.

According to Southland, this type of base could not be found within a 25-mile radius and another type of base was sought as a substitute.

Southland claims a stop work order was then issued by the commission engineer and the resulting delay caused the company to incur additional direct costs, including the cost of demobilizing during the winter months and additional grading, shaping and maintenance of road shoulders, ditches and the base course required to complete the work.

Answering Southland's complaint, the commission denied most of the allegations and referred to the contract document for information.

In a commission meeting earlier this week, the commission accepted a proposal to purchase compactors for record-keeping in the Port and Harbor office.

Port and Harbor Director Harold Olsen said the compactors would free the staff from extensive handwritten records and give them additional time to perform other duties.

The compactors, which cost $21,327,

The participants in the conference will be the "space ambassadors" associated with NASA's Teacher in Space program.

The ambassadors are made up of the 112 teachers who were state finalists in the selection process for the Teacher in Space project.

Many of these teachers have acquired aerospace knowledge and techniques which they are applying in their classrooms and to assist other teachers.

Bay-Waveland schools bond issue meets with no public opposition

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District has received no opposition to a $3,485,000 bond issue that will allow expansions and renovations at all four of the district's schools.

According to Board Attorney Lucian Gex, the final deadline for any petition opposing the bond issue was 7 p.m. Monday.

The deadline passed with no petitions being delivered to the superintendent's office, and no one spoke in opposition to the bond issue at Monday's board meeting.

Under special legislation, an unopposed bond issue does not require a referendum, according to Gex.

A petition would have had to include signatures of registered voters in the district opposing the bond issue.

A unanimous vote made the bond issue official.

The next step for the bond issue is a validation procedure with the bond attorneys in Jackson that Gex said would probably begin after June 1.

The attorney added that lack of any opposition to the bond issue is a vote of confidence from the public regarding the board's ability to spend the money on whatever improvements are most necessary.

When Board President Betty Diboll thanked Gex for his work on the bond issue, Gex stated, "It's the public we really need to thank. They're the ones who did it by not opposing it."

Diboll then asked for and received a motion placing the attorney's remarks in the board minutes.

In other business Monday, the board—

Diamondhead dinner theatre players rehearsing comedy

Rehearsals for the Diamondhead Little Theatre's production of "A Bad Year for Tomatoes" are underway, according to Director Ed Scanlan.

The play, a comedy by John Patrick, will be offered to dinner theatre audiences on June 10, 11 and 12 at the Diamondhead Country Club.

Missy Marshall, a Coast native returned by way of New York City, plays Myra Marlowe, noted television personality who is trying to write her memoirs in a sleepy New England town which should afford peace and quiet and does anything but.

Marshall, an industrial show producer by profession, although new to area stages, brings considerable acting experience to the role.

Ricky Thorp plays Myra's manager; since his debut in "Here Lies Jeremy Troy" at Diamondhead, Ricky has been a true favorite.

Dottie Overall plays Reba, and Sally Rodrigue is Cora, both busybody neighbors: nosy, omnipresent and irrepressible.

To get a little breathing space Myra invents a demented sister, but that play backfires when handyman, Piney, played by Clem Acker, falls for her.

Barbara Jo Fitch is Willa Mae, something of an eccentric who wants to "save" the poor sister by a sort of homespun exorcism.

Before things get sorted out, a sheriff, played by Dan Marshall, shows up.

Tickets for the dinner theatre are $17.50 for non-members and $15 for theatre members, and can be obtained by calling 255-1814 or 255-2897.

AUTHOR DONATES—Franklin J. Cuevas recently presented a copy of his book titled Life History of Juan De Cuevas to Prima Wismack, city-county library director. Cuevas' book also contains the History of Cat Island and Life of Christian Ladnier family. Copies of the book have also been presented to other Coastal libraries and the State Archives.

If the thought of whipping up a cheese souffle scares you out of your culinary wits, or if, like I, you live a somewhat unpredictable life wherein the phone shrills with an urgent message or family and guests scatter on last-minute errands or diversions just as you're about to remove your puffed up golden specialty from the oven, just whip up a Sneaky Souffle.

Easy and elegant and quite adaptable, it's a good recipe to have on hand. You can assemble it all the night before you plan to serve it, or a few hours ahead, or, when you're really desperate, slash the casserole in the freezer for just a few minutes to chill it before refrigerating it. Then, you merely have to pop it into the oven for a half hour or so before you're ready to serve it.

And, if the diners are tardy at the table, you can always christen the dish "Fallen Angel Souffle" and swear that it was supposed to sink in the middle. This dish is in reality what is called a "strata"—a layered dish, so, here's:

SNEAKY SOUFFLE
8 or 7 slices day-old bread
Softened butter or margarine for spreading
4 eggs
2 cups milk
4 oz. sharp cheddar cheese, grated
Dashes of hot pepper sauce

Pepper to taste, skip or spare the salt.

First of all, butter quite liberally a 1½ or 2-quart casserole, bottom and sides. Trim the crusts from six or seven slices of bread, and spread generously with softened butter or margarine. Cut the slices in half or smaller, to fit your dish, butter side up. Line the bottom and sides of the dish with all but two slices of the bread.

Beat together the eggs, milk and cheese, add hot pepper sauce and pepper, salt if, and as you wish. Pour the mixture over the bread pieces, top with the reserved slices, cover and refrigerate for at least a few hours so that the bread can become quite soggy with the mixture.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes, until the top puffs up and turns golden, and a knife inserted in the center comes away clean. Speed the souffle and the family to the table, for a souffle, sneaky or otherwise, collapses daintily if kept waiting.

For variety, I sometimes add shrimp or crabmeat or ham or leftover green peas or what have you to this sneaky souffle. And, if you've refrigerated this in a glass baking dish, be careful not to heat the oven up ahead lest you crack the dish. (Four servings.)

Consumer Update

You've just completed a job interview and, just when you think your "pavement pounding" days may be over, must negotiate your salary.

Because this negotiation can have a major long-term effect on your income and lifestyle, both flexibility and assertiveness are vital. Below are some simple rules to guide you:

—Find out as much as you can about your prospective employer.

Your salary is an extremely delicate subject. Don't tie yourself to a specific figure until you've found out all your can. You might remark, "I understand the range for this job is between $ and $. Is this the range in your organization?"

You might receive an offer that exceeds your expectations for a specific job. Don't jump to grab it or kick yourself for not asking more.

The purpose of negotiating an offer is not to stretch your employer to the breaking point but to strike a deal that satisfies both you and the company.

Some topics related to benefits in the interview process are: health, dental, vision, life insurance, 401(k) plan, stock options, and paid time off.

Remember, your negotiation skills can make a significant difference in your long-term financial well-being. Stay calm, stay informed, and you'll come out on top.

Joseph Henry Benvenuti

On Tuesday Joseph Henry Benvenuti, a lifelong resident of Bay St. Louis, was laid to rest.

A person about whom one truly can say was dedicated to his family, God, country and his community, the Bay St. Louis attorney was the first city judge for Bay St. Louis.

He was a past president of the Hancock County Bar Association and past chairman of the Democratic Committee for Hancock County.

An Army veteran who served as a Captain in the European Theatre during World War II, Benvenuti was wounded in action and received a purple heart.

A 40-year member of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 of Bay St. Louis, Benvenuti served three years as post commander and over 30-years as post chaplain. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Forty & Eight and Disabled Veterans.

I have had the honor of being present and hearing many of Benvenuti's Memorial and Veterans Day addresses.

As a veteran himself, he spent many hours of research preparing for these addresses.

This week a fellow Hancock County attorney described Benvenuti as meaning more to Americanism than anyone else residing in the county.

A faithful member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, he was a past president of the Parish Council, Usher Society, and also a Fourth Degree member of the Knights of Columbus.

A family man, Benvenuti was the father of two sons and three daughters.

Joseph Benvenuti will long be remembered by people of this community for his citizenship, comradeship, and his loyalty to his family and church.

To his wife, children, mother, relatives and friends, we pray that God will be with each of you in your hour of loss.

The Hancock County Farmers Market is once again in operation at the Fairgrounds on Longfellow Road next to the National Guard Armory.

The market is open on Saturday and Wednesday mornings from 7 a.m. until about noon.

Local farmers sell just about every type of produce at the market which is sponsored by the County Extension Service and Chamber of Commerce.

Nothing tastes better than farm fresh vegetables from local farmers who have a knack for growing produce with a special flavor.

The farmers come from every section of the county including Bay St. Louis.

Guess I will have to visit the market quite often this year as I have been unable to get my garden planted other than a few Irish potatoes.

While on the subject of vegetables, I realize many folks do have time to plant vegetable gardens and at times may have a good crop.

In case you come up with some extra vegetables and have no one to give them to, you may want to consider the Food Pantry.

The Food Pantry tries to give staple items to those folks in need, and since they have moved to their new location behind the Hancock County Courthouse they have more refrigeration.

When available they can keep items such as squash, green beans, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, etc., and add them to the staple items they distribute. You may want to keep this in mind.

The Food Pantry is able to operate through the generosity of area churches and residents who contribute food items.

The organization, not in operation for a full year as yet, has become really an asset for our community.

AMBASSADOR WINNING ESSAYS MERIT YOUR ATTENTION

For the next two weeks, I am going to share with you the two essays of winners in our "Why I Am Proud of Mississippi" contest, sponsored through the Mississippi Ambassador Program.

These two winning essays, one in the high school division and one in the junior high school division, were chosen from more than 500 participants in Congressional district contests, as well as hundreds more who participated at the local school level.

This week I will focus on the high school essay winner, Allison Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hite Lane of Brandon. She is a freshman at Brandon High School and a member of the band, the Flag Corps, Beta Club and Fellowship of Christian Athletes. She is a member of the First Baptist Church of Brandon, where she is on the Youth Board.

The text of Allison's essay follows: Like Dorothy returning from the Land of Oz, many of us have come to realize there is no place like home. Home for us is Mississippi.

In Mississippi a sense of time and place contributes to this feeling of home. A heritage closely tied to the land has led to a sense of belonging. The many small towns and cities across the state create community spirit and pride. Mississippi's slower pace of living helps to ease the stress of life in modern America.

Mississippians are a mixture of national, ethnic, and racial groups from around the world. We are made of many people. Our heritage includes contributions from Indians, French and Spanish explorers, English, early Americans, Scots, Irish, Orientals, Italians, Greeks, and Africans brought here as slaves. In our recent history, Vietnam refugees have come to Mississippi to add yet another element to the Mississippi mosaic.

Mississippians are friendly people known for their warmth and hospitality. Mississippians have a strong feeling of family and togetherness. We care strongly for each other.

Mississippi culture is as varied as the people who developed it. Indian villages, frontier wilderness, antebellum life, and contributions of black people are blended together with modern America to create a unique Mississippi culture. Our recent contributions range from the blues and jazz, to Elvis, to the International Ballet Competition.

The outdoors has a special place in the lives of most Mississippians. A small population and relatively large unsettled areas create excellent conditions for hunting and fishing. Many Mississippians participate in community or church sports teams almost year round.

Mississippi lifestyle has not stopped us from making progress against two of mankind's oldest enemies: prejudice and ignorance. The recent election of Congressman Ely sent Mississippi's first black representative to Congress since Reconstruction. This event was a symbol of the significant progress made toward racial harmony in Mississippi. The 1982 Education Reform Act was a major step toward better education in our state.

With a proud heritage from the past, a pleasant lifestyle for today, and a promising future, Mississippi continues to offer its people the best of two worlds. Though not perfect, Mississippi is a good place to live, and I am proud to call it my home.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Wanda buy your own state legislature this year? Or at least think you've bought your own legislature?

Maybe not. But a lot of folks who are in the business of needing friends in the legislature on certain bills are apparently going to put up money this year to try and buy some friendship by helping elect their kind of folks to legislative seats.

It's all done by political action committees, known in the trade as PACs. Every business or professional group has a PAC. Individuals can have PACs, too.

The important thing, however, is that under the state's new election law, all PACs now have to register with the secretary of state and make reports once they have received or spent $200.

Since the law is still brand new, a lot of PACs have not gotten around to filing with the secretary of state, and because they were not required to register in the past seem to be slow to get on the record book.

The PAC section of the new election law was one of the hardest-fought provisions put into law, since a lot of industry and business groups which have been spending PAC money in the past didn't want to have to come out into the open on how they spent their money.

Now it's all going to become public record when the PACs put $200 or more into political races, and in particular, legislative races where it is obvious they are seeking to buy influence with lawmakers.

Also, the PACs will have to report where their own funds come from, which will give some additional clue as to who, and why, their contributors are seeking to win friends and influence politicians.

Already some 25 PACs have been registered, ranging all the way from the Wall Street Investment House, Salomon Brothers Inc. in New York, to Mississippi Nurses Active for Political Awareness.

Some 250 to 500 PACs are expected to be registered by the time the political season gets underway. As an indicator of how many groups are bidding for influence with the legislature, there were a total of 276 lobbyists registered for the 1987 legislative session.

The biggest, most active organization in the field of influencing state legislative races is BI-PEC, the Business and Industry Political Education Committee, which now has over 1,300 members, including organizations and individuals.

BI-PEC's political action arm is called IMPAC, which is the registered PAC that will be putting money exclusively into legislative races this summer.

It's still too early in the political process for BI-PEC to decide how many legislative candidates it will back this year, says Richard Lankford, the executive director, but he said the group will be involved in "over 50 races."

Four years ago, the business-industry group endorsed nearly 100 candidates, and put money in their campaigns, if they had opponents.

But Lankford said reports that BI-PAC spent $1 million in 1983 legislative races was exaggerated. "It was not anywhere near that much," Lankford, who came on board only a year ago, said.

Significantly, BI-PEC has already decided that its top priority issue this time will be electing lawmakers who are favorable to tort reform, and limitation to civil damages which failed after becoming a hot issue in the last two legislative sessions.

IMPAC will, consequently, be pitted against L.I.M.B., or Lawyers Involved for Mississippi Betterment, the political action arm of the Mississippi Trial Lawyers Association, which takes the opposite stance on the tort reform issue.

Four years ago, Mississippi First Inc. had come on the scene to back legislative candidates who were dedicated to progressive issues, particularly implementation of the Education Reform Act. Many observers believed, however, that Mississippi First's real goal was to bring about the downfall of House Speaker Buddie Newman.

Essentially House members backed by Mississippi First were the ones who made up the "House 26" who voted for reform of the House rules in 1984, the starting point of Newman's eventual demise.

This time, Mississippi First is among the registered PACs, and its primary goal thus far is to elect lawmakers who are committed to a constitutional convention and replacement of the state's 1890 constitution.

There may be an underlying struggle shaping up between Mississippi First and the business-industry forces on constitutional reform.

A new state constitution is "an open issue" in the business community, Lankford said, and it will be left to the individual organizations in BI-PEC to decide what position they will take.

However, a number of business and industry lobbyists around the legislature have indicated they are very lukewarm on constitutional reform, chiefly because of a fear that a constitutional convention could eliminate the "right to work" section from the constitution.

Most observers of constitutional reform, however, consider that a red herring issue raised by business and industry forces.

In any case, there seems to be a major turn over in prospect in legislative seats, both from the fact that some 30 to 35 incumbents are not seeking re-election, plus the indication from polling information that the people are planning to put a number of incumbents on the sidelines.

Matters of Health

CHILDREN AND DRUGS

Q: How can I encourage my child to stay away from drugs?

A: Despite the news appeal of First Lady Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" campaign, just saying "no" isn't always easy.

Some teenagers even admitted during a recent television interview that the "good" feelings drugs induce are hard to give up once they've experienced them.

So what can parents do? It might seem obvious, but setting an example isn't a bad idea. It's unreasonable to expect Johnny to turn down drugs if he knows Mom and Dad take them now and then. But the most important method of prevention is communication.

As early as elementary school age, parents should begin to explain to their children that although drugs may make them feel good, the good feeling only lasts a short time. They should show them that there are many other ways to feel good by including them in activities and offering opportunities that demonstrate excitement and fun without drug use.

Alcohol, tobacco and marijuana are the three most popular recreational drugs used by people of all ages in this country. The dangerous effects of alcohol and tobacco are well documented. They affect every organ and vital system in the body. The heart and blood vessels have to pump extra blood to deal with the extra work of these powerful chemicals. In addition to the mind-altering tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), many are potent and known to cause cancer. This drug causes the heart to beat twice as fast as normal.

The lungs, immune and reproductive systems also have been shown to be impaired. The intense media attention to the extreme dangers of cocaine and its street cousin "crack" has brought home to many Americans that drugs kill. Death from cocaine comes without warning and without discrimination. One should remember that not only are drugs unsafe, but also unlawful.

A loving, concerned, aware and vigilant parent can be useful in the struggle to teach children about drugs and other causes of stress they may encounter while growing up.

Meanwhile, here are a few general guidelines: Be loving, compassionate, and understanding; keep communications open; set limits so that your child feels you care and know what to expect, but make sure the limits are reasonable; assure privacy, especially if you have a teenager; always knock before entering your child's room; take your child's problems seriously; even if they seem trivial to you, keep your sense of humor.

As a parent, you should know that while there are many ways to keep your child safe, the most important is to keep your child's mind open to the possibility of change. The child's mind is the most powerful tool they have, and it's the only one that can't be taken away from them. Keep it open, and you'll be able to help your child make the right choices.

Legislation allows some 16th Section land to be leased for 40 years

Revenues for many of the 100 school districts that manage Sixteenth Section School Trust lands will be increased.

Governor Bill Allain recently signed legislation which permits the leasing of most classes of Sixteenth Section lands for up to 40 years at the discretion of local school boards. The 40-year provision, like the 25-year limitation before it, does not apply to land classified as forest or agriculture.

"This legislation strikes the balance between the needs of those who lease the land and school districts," according to Secretary of State Molpus.

The mandatory adjustment, as well as other clauses in the act will provide adequate management safeguards for the school districts, insuring that fair market value is received for these school lands. At the same time the 40-year leasing provision will address the need which leaseholders have in obtaining long-term financing for improvements. This property will then be more valuable to leaseholders and will raise more money for our schools.

According to W. E. Milner, assistant superintendent of the Jackson Public Schools, the legislation's passage will help the district fully develop one of its sections in Southwest Jackson. The District projects that over $300,000 in additional revenues to that district alone may result.

Introduced in the Senate by Bob Montgomery of Canton and in the House of Representatives by Dick Hall of Jackson and Clyde Woodfield of Gulfport, the lease term extension legislation increases the school districts' options while protecting them from losses which might result from inflation.

House Bill 255 requires rental adjustments every ten years, with the exception of farm residential and residentially classified lands. For these two classes, if the clause is not a part of the lease, explicit reasons must be noted in the lease itself and on the minutes of the local board of education.

House Bill 255 implements the constitutional amendment approved by over 70 percent of the voters in the 1986 General Elections. The law represents the most substantive change to-date to the 1978 Sixteenth Section Reform.

He concluded, "The 1978 legislation is a good and workable law. Only after considerable study did we make a recommendation to the Legislature for this important change. While I do not foresee the need for further changes, as the ultimate trustee, the Secretary of State's Office will always examine ways in which to increase the revenues from this most valuable resource, for school children and taxpayers alike."

Board cancels former member's lease

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

An agriculture lease of Sixteenth Section lands to former School Board Member Tommy Shaw was cancelled Monday at a Hancock County School Board special meeting.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph recommended the action after receiving opinions from the Ethics Commission and the Attorney General's Office and a request from Secretary of State Dick Mofus to renegotiate all Sixteenth Section leases executed prior to the 1978 Reform Act.

All Sixteenth Section leases must be renegotiated to insure a percentage of the fair market value of the land is being paid to the school district, Randolph said.

Shaw's lease on 150 acres carried an annual rental of $18.75.

Shaw, who had secured the lease in a perfectly legal manner, was not in the position of not being able to apply to renegotiate the lease by state action which required all leases to be renegotiated.

"He is in a catch-22 situation and the school's action puts him in violation," King said.

Randolph said Shaw had requested the board consider leasing the acreage to the school. School Board Attorney Joseph Gex told the board he believed it would be perfectly legal to lease such a lease with Shaw's son, but Shaw could not use the property.

"Regardless of who leases the property, either a family member or not-family member, it is the land they are in violation of the law," Gex said.

Gex was instructed to see if Shaw's son could be given first right of refusal, if equal bids were received on the property.

Also at this meeting the board discussed a letter to be sent to all area architects, inviting them to submit a proposal for the proposed building program to be funded by a $4.5 million bond issue.

In an effort to have the work completed in the shortest amount of time and most economical, the board agreed to seek proposals on the project as a whole and with several alternatives.

Included in the building program is the construction of a new junior-senior high school and extensive renovations and classroom additions at existing facilities.

The board also agreed the proposals should include information on professional qualifications, capacity to accomplish the work and quality control measures.

Proposals should be submitted by June 1.

Also at the meeting the board took under advisement six bids for soil borings on the property located on Hwy. 603 near Stennis where the proposed new junior-senior high school will be built.

The six bids were submitted by Ladner Testing Laboratories, Inc. of Jackson; Gulf State Laboratories, Inc. of Biloxi; EnviroTech Drilling Company of Wiggins; Thompson Engineers Testing, Inc. of Mobile; Engineers Testing Service, Inc. of Hattiesburg; and Professional Service Industries, Inc. of Gulfport.

The bids ranged from $1,700 to $4,300, however, the scopes of work presented in the bid differed.

The board voted to take the matter under advisement to determine why the companies had bid on varying amounts of work.

Information to be provided by the successful soil boring engineer includes type of boring, elevation of groundwater, log of depth and feet of soil description, soil classification, percent of water content and dry weight.

The board voted in April to have the soil boring test made when the suitability of the site for the proposed new school was questioned.

In other business at the meeting the board:

—Approved a recommendation to advertise for bids for four school bus engines. Randolph said he based his recommendation on the facts buses are so expensive and four school bus bodies are still good and only need new engines.

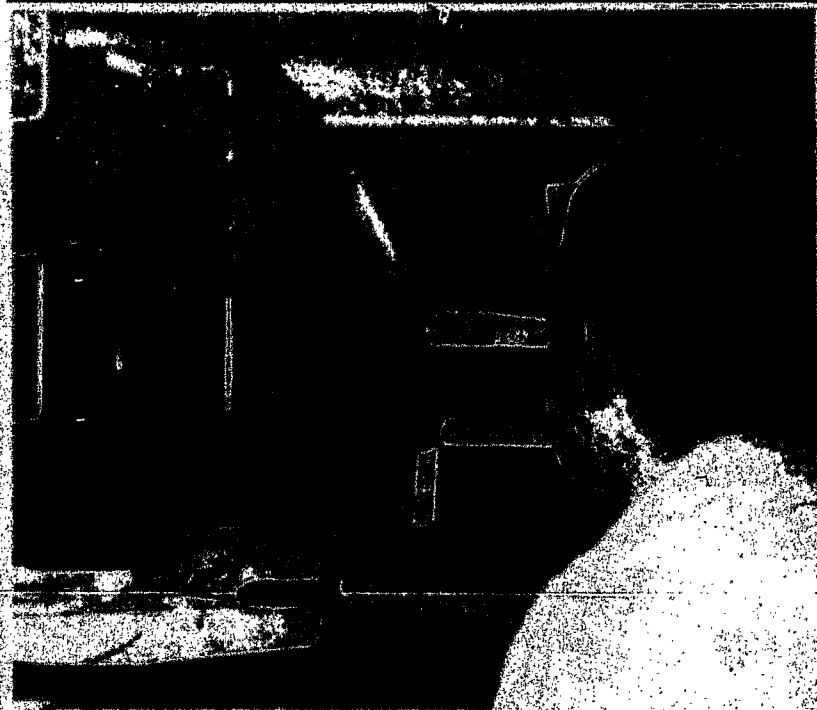

—Approved the resignation of Katherine A. Moffat as kindergarten teacher at Hancock North Central Elementary effective June 1.

—Scheduled expulsion hearings for several students for Monday, May 18 at 6:30 p.m.

—Approved a Sixteenth Section residential lease to Herbert Ritchie Jr. for Lot 47, Board of Supervisors Subdivision No. 2, Section 16-9-16 for 25 years at $144 per year.

CLAUDIA SPOTORNO MURPHY of Bay St. Louis will be a contestant in the 1987 Mrs. Mississippi-America Pageant Saturday and Sunday in Jackson. Mrs. Murphy is the mother of four sons and has been married 13 years to Ray Murphy. She is a member of the Bay St. Louis Little Theater, Riveria Production Company and Our Lady of the Gulf Parish, where she leads singing. She is a graduate of Bay Senior High and is currently employed with the U.S. Postal Service.

And in 1983, St. Stanislaus honored him on the 60th anniversary of his graduation from the school.

Dr. Wolfe retired in 1965, after having practiced medicine for 53 years. He now divides his time between Bay St. Louis and New Orleans where his daughter lives.

In his request for the opinion, which he stated was obtained for "informational purposes," Gex stated, "I would interpret owner-occupied to mean that the owner uses it as his full-time residence; however, I have been unable to find any legal definition for the aforementioned term."

The opinion, signed by Special Assistant Attorney General Samuel W. Keyes Jr., states, "Whether or not a particular piece of property is 'owner-occupied' as contemplated by Article IV, Section 112, Mississippi Constitution of 1890, must be considered on a case by case basis and is more appropriately for determination by the local authorities."

"Furthermore, the term 'owner-occupied' does not, in the absence of constitutional or statutory guidelines, lend itself to a rigid, legal definition."

The opinion also stated that the term "owner-occupied" as used in Section 112 implies permanent residences but does not specifically restrict the term to full-time occupancy.

Murtagh said he feels it was not the intent of the legislation to extend the 10 percent assessment to people who have a permanent residence and purchase their automobile tags outside Hancock County.

"In effect, we (tax collectors) are interpreting the constitution," Murtagh stated.

Rutherford plans not to run for circuit clerk re-election

BY DENA BENNETT
Hancock County Circuit Clerk John D. Rutherford Jr. has stated that he does not plan to run for re-election.

Rutherford, who was first elected to public office in 1972, said he was not a candidate in the August primary.

"I want to thank the people for all the times they supported me and voted for me. God bless you all," Rutherford said.

His career as a county official has included seven years as chancery clerk, ending in 1979. His term as circuit clerk, which began in 1984 will end in December.

As part of his duties as chancery clerk, Rutherford has also served as county treasurer, auditor and recorder and as clerk of the board of supervisors and county youth court.

JOHN RUTHERFORD JR.

Prior to serving as chancery clerk, Rutherford retired from the Bay St. Louis Post Office, a job he had continued since leaving the U.S. Coast Guard in 1945, with the exception of four years during which he was employed by the Internal Revenue Service.

He served on the Hancock General Hospital Board and was its treasurer from 1963 until 1972.

He also serves on the executive committee of the area-wide model project for Senior Citizens of Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties; executive committee to prevent drug abuse and Gulf Coast Employment and Training Council.

Rutherford is a life member of American Legion Post 139 and holds a 44-year pin. He has served as district commander, southern vice chairman, department sergeant-at-arms and department finance officer and in all offices at post level.

In addition, he has served as co-chairman of the building committee since 1948, chairman or co-chairman each year for annual July 4 and Christmas parties, Americanism chairman and service officer.

As service officer, Rutherford has been responsible for assisting veterans, widows and orphans in applying for benefits.

He has also served as chairman of Boys State, school awards committee, Veterans Day parades, and grave registration committee.

He received the American Legion Distinguished Service Award in 1975, having been selected from among 30,000 legionnaires for the honor.

In addition, Rutherford has held all local offices in the American Legion's honor group, 40 & 8, and has served as president of 13-stated Dixie-Land Promenade.

Through the American Legion, Rutherford and Dr. Joseph J. Well organized the Blood Bank at St. Louis in 1981. Rutherford has served as president of the organization for the past 13 years and in 1984 was awarded the American Red Cross Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his work with the blood program.

In addition to American Legion, Rutherford has been active in Boy Scouts of America for 24 years and was the president of the program's Silver Beaver Award.

He has also been a member of Masonic Lodge 1234, serving as treasurer for several years, and now serving as a member of the Top Temple in Gulfport. He is a committee member and was a member of the committee and was a member of the committee and was a member of the committee.

BILOXI—Keesler Air Force Base will host the Mississippi State Special Olympics Friday through Sunday.

Anastasio has been with the program for 16 years as a coach, games director, area director, and for the past year as state director. He also has been a part of Keesler's program since its inception six years ago, officials said.

"I have seen the dedication Keesler people give the program," Mr. Anastasio stated, "and I attribute their success to this dedication and the efforts of thousands of Keesler personnel. The goals of Special Olympics have been met through their efforts."

Winners from 15 regional areas will come to Keesler to compete in the state games. About 1,300 olymp-

Water and ERG will be provided at the halfway point, and refreshments will be available at the finish line.

USM cuts swim program

HATFIELD—The University of Southern Mississippi has decided to cut its men's swimming program. The decision was made by the university's administrators. The program was started in 1971 and had a record of 10 years. The decision was made because of the high cost of the program and the lack of interest in the sport.

"While the decision regarding swimming was a tough one, it was one mandated by our present financial condition. It also should be noted that it is our full intention to honor our scholarship obligations to our present swim team members, and to provide help where possible to those athletes who wish to move elsewhere."

"I wish that we could add even more sports, but until proper funding for coaching, recruiting, travel and scholarships becomes available, we will remain with eight men's and seven women's sports. The number required by the NCAA Division I membership and the level of funding is increasing Title IX.

"It remains my goal to see that proper funding is available so that we can provide a quality, competitive program within the Metro and the NCAA. Much has been said about the Eagle Club (which will fund scholarships for our 15 sports) and the sale of football and basketball season tickets.

"Until the community, fans, friends, faculty, students and alumni decide to get involved (join the Eagle Club and purchase season tickets) it will remain tough to finance our programs since only football and men's basketball have the opportunity to earn funds with which to support all of our other sports programs."

SPORTS LINE

By Jim Stallworth

In the early '70s, Americans took to the road for fitness. We all bought into the running craze. Not only was it good for physical fitness, it was also frugal. We even took running a step further. Joggers became fashion conscious. To be clad in cotton shorts, and/or grey sweats with a dirty pair of Chuck Taylors was definitely not cool! Sporting goods stores began catering to runners, and manufacturers followed their lead.

The mid-'70s and early '80s saw running take a back seat to health clubs and spas. Aerobics and weight training became the rage. Again, sporting goods manufacturers went with the trend to produce shoes, belts, and outfits

Coach named distinguished professor

HATTIESBURG—A longtime educator in the University of Southern Mississippi's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation was presented the university's 1986-87 Distinguished Professor award during spring graduation ceremonies on the USM campus May 9.

LARRY LADDER

Larry Laddner, a 1954 graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi, has been a faculty member in the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation since 1961. He has been a Distinguished Professor since 1986-87. Laddner has received numerous awards for his teaching and research, including the Distinguished Professor Award, the Distinguished Faculty Award, and the Distinguished Alumni Award. He has also been a member of the National Association of Physical Education Teachers and the National Association of Physical Education Administrators.

"We are pleased that Larry has been selected for this award from among the many distinguished professors at USM," said USM Alumni Director Powell Ogilvie. "He will join a long list of other outstanding educators who have been so honored here at USM."

The recipient of the award is chosen by ballot from the active membership of the USM Alumni Association. A field of some five finalists is presented each year to the association's membership by a 12-member faculty/staff committee.

Laddner is well known in southern Mississippi for his many years as a successful basketball coach at Poycuse Memorial High School. He has continued his teaching and coaching career in higher education at USM, and has distinguished himself and the university at local, regional, national and international levels.

Laddner's many outstanding accomplishments include: guest speaker for the 1980 Southern District American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation convention; Special Olympics state basketball tournament director and honorary coach 1978-80; recipient of USM's 1980-81 Excellence in Teaching Award; director of annual USM girls' basketball camps 1978-80; and award-winning coach and coordinator of a 1980 special basketball program for the National Institute of Sport, Maracaibo, Venezuela.

He is the author of a book, "The Winning Basket," and is the author or co-author of some seven published articles in the HPER field. His personal contributions to the university and the community are many—including having served as a featured speaker for some 70 banquets, programs, club meetings and religious functions.

He also serves as a teacher, counselor, advisor and friend to some 100 students per semester at USM.

Wildlife seeking public input on proposed changes

Executive Director Joe Stone of the Department of Wildlife Conservation and Dr. Richard L. Leard, director of the Bureau of Marine Resources, have indicated concern at the lack of public input on the intended changes proposed to the Commission on Wildlife Conservation last month.

These changes concern the use of double rigging in Mississippi waters where commercial shrimpers will be allowed to use two 25 foot trawls or the usual single trawl. The determination as to which will be used would be at the discretion of the individual boat captain.

The next change is that no egg crabs would be allowed to be taken in Mississippi waters at any time. Should any be caught they should be returned to the sea.

The last intended change has to do with the landing of seafood not caught in Mississippi waters. The question is, "Should seafood caught outside of Mississippi waters be allowed to be landed in Mississippi without the captain or vessel having a permit or being taxed?"

Public input on these matters will be most helpful to the Commission of the Department of Wildlife Conservation, the officials said.

Address correspondence to Dr. Richard L. Leard, Director, Bureau of Marine Resources, P.O. Drawer 959, Long Beach, MS 39560.

Further information on the proposed changes may be obtained by calling Dr. Fred Deegen at 601/864-4602.

Coast Episcopal teams eye softball titles

Coast Episcopal High School will host the Gulf States Conference Championship Softball Tournament Tuesday with the first game scheduled to start at 10 a.m. at Parker Memorial Field on Fleetman and Second Street in Pass Christian.

Boys teams participating in the tournament will be Plaquemine

Christian, Marrero Christian and New Orleans Christian along with Coast Episcopal.

Teams will be seeded according to their end-of-season standings in league play.

Plaquemine and Marrero are presently in the lead.

The girls championship game will be played at 2 p.m. with Coast Episcopal taking on Marrero.

"The tournament should be a good one if league play is any indication," said softball coach Terry Mahan.

"Games have been extremely close," according to Mahan, "with fewest errors deciding the outcome."

"Come and support the Raiders in their quest for another girls conference title and an excellent chance for the boys title as well," she urges.

Stars expand record to 3-2

The Bay St. Louis-based Stars baseball team has expanded its season record to 3 wins, two losses.

The Stars lost 5-4 to the Delisle Yellow Jackets May 10 in Delisle and will play their next game against the North Gulfport Angels at 8 p.m. Sunday at St. Rose Field.

Leading hitters against Delisle were William Carter, with three hits in four times at bat, and Miles Harvey, who hit two for four.

Carter was losing pitcher, bringing his season win-loss record to 1-1. There will be no admission charge for Sunday's game.

Noblin signs up with Dallas Cowboys

UNIVERSITY—Ole Miss free safety Jeff Noblin of Jackson has signed a free agent contract with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and will report to the team's mini-camp in Dallas May 13.

"This is an excellent opportunity for Jeff," said Ole Miss head coach Billy Brewer. "Jeff seems to fit the Dallas philosophy and I think he has a good chance of making the team."

Noblin, a 6-2½, 200 pounder, earned three letters while playing at Ole Miss and was team captain of last fall's squad which finished 8-3-1 and defeated Texas Tech in the Independence Bowl. He was named to the coaches All-Southeastern Conference team and also made the Academic All-America team for the second straight year.

"I've really been impressed with the Cowboy organization," Noblin said. "They seem to take great pride in their free agent program."

Noblin recently took the Medical College Admissions Test and was chosen as an alternate, which could lead to his being accepted into the University of Mississippi Medical School.

"Medical school is very much in my plans, but I couldn't pass up the opportunity having a chance to make a professional football team," Noblin said. "I've enjoyed my student-athlete experience here at Ole Miss and am hoping to continue the combination on the professional level."

Noblin, who was selected as one of 11 National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athletes last winter, has also received the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship.

Noblin ranked second on the team last season in tackles with 92. He broke up five passes, intercepted three passes, and recovered one fumble, plus earned national honors following the Vanderbilt game when ABC selected him as a Scholar-Athlete of the week.

Ole Miss had punter Bill Smith (Green Bay), cornerback Jonathan Shelley (San Francisco) and tight end Mario Perry (L.A. Raiders) drafted by the NFL last month.

First summer golf camp set May 31-June 5 at UM

UNIVERSITY—Young golfers ages 10 through 18 high school seniors are invited to The University of Mississippi this summer for a series of golf camps designed to improve skills in all phases of the game.

Three camps will be offered. The first, a co-ed camp, is set May 31-June 5 and will be followed by two boys-only camps June 7-12 and 14-19. All camps are being coordinated by the University's Division of Continuing Education.

Ole Miss head coach Ernest Ross and his staff of PGA professionals and selected collegiate golfers will provide balanced instruction in chipping, putting, sand shots, iron play, wood play, specialty shots and game management. Participants will receive individual instruction in swing fundamentals and basic golf principles. Group instruction will include the rules of golf, etiquette and self-improvement drills.

The Ole Miss Gold Club - a championship layout with large practice area, putting green, practice sand traps and indoor teaching areas - will be used for both instruction and practice. Evening recreation time will be available at the Turner Health, Physical Education and Recreation Complex. Campers will also have opportunities to use the facilities of the Ole Miss Union.

Resident campers will be housed in modern, air-conditioned University dormitories and will be supervised 24 hours a day by trained personnel. Participants should bring golf clothing and shoes, clubs, balls, sports clothes and shoes, swimsuit, bath towels, sheets, pillowcase, blanket and toiletries.

Fee for each camp is $280 for resident campers and $195 for day campers. A $50 deposit is required with the balance due on registration day. The fee for resident campers includes housing and meals, instruction, accident insurance with limited coverage while on campus, an Ole Miss visor, a camp shirt, golf balls and a Wilson/Ole Miss practice bag. The day camp fee does not include housing and meals. Refunds will be made if requested 48 hours prior to the opening of camp.

For more information or to register, contact the Division of Continuing Education, The University of Mississippi, University, MS 38677; telephone (601) 232-7222.

Transportation Secretary Dole to address MSU Commencement

Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole Friday will deliver the commencement address at Mississippi State University.

Approximately 2,000 graduates of the 1986 summer term and fall semester and the 1987 spring semester will receive degrees at the 5 p.m. ceremony in Humphrey Coliseum. MSU has only one commencement each year.

From 2:30 p.m., graduates and their families will be honored at a reception in the Colvard Union ballroom. MSU President and Mrs. Donald W. Zacharias will be hosts for the event.

Mrs. Dole, wife of Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole (R-Kan.), was appointed to the cabinet post in 1983. After more than four years in office, she has served longer than any previous transportation secretary since the office was created in 1967.

The North Carolina native heads a department with 100,000 employees and a budget of approximately $28 billion. She sets policy direction for the nation's aviation, highway, railroad, mass transit, and maritime resources, and is the first woman to head a branch of the armed forces—the U.S. Coast Guard.

Prior to joining President Reagan's cabinet, she was assistant to the president for public liaison at the White House.

From 1973 to 1979, she was a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mrs. Dole graduated with distinction in political science from Duke University. She was president of the student body and elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She received both a master's degree and a law degree from Harvard University.

The following students are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of the 1987 spring semester. There are approximately 2,300 candidates for degrees from the 1986 summer terms, 1986 fall semester, and 1987 spring semester.

They are Susan Lorraine Fricke of Pearlington, BBA, Business and Industry; Laura Lynn Garrison of Bay St. Louis, BS, Forest Resources; Josh A. Hansell, Waveland, BS, Engineering; Victor Guido Lachin, Mississippi State, BS, Engineering; Sharon Ann Ladner, Bay St. Louis, BS, Agriculture; Regina Darnell Neale, Pass Christian, Education; Fred G. Ulmer, Bay St. Louis, BS, Engineering; and Drew John Dembocki, Bay St. Louis, BS, Engineering.

must be accepted, while others may be improved or made less prominent. Heredity plays a role in body build and appearance.

If a family tends to have a certain stature or facial characteristics, the young member of the family may simply need help in accepting his or her appearance as an inherited trait.

Parents can help by being supportive and understanding. They can stress the unique qualities of the teenager and help him appreciate being a little different.

Improved health, diet and exercise will prevent and help control figure problems for most young people. Regular medical and dental supervision allow the physician and dentist to be familiar with the youth's growth pattern, as well as the medical and family history.

These professionals often provide an outside-the-family resource with whom teenagers can talk and gain security.

Good grooming and careful selection of clothing can aid the overall appearance and help conceal figure flaws.

Whether a youth's appearance is showing family traits, poor eating habits or poor grooming, the aim should be to help the young person take some action to improve his or her appearance.

Information on clothing selection, good grooming and nutritional balance is available at the County Extension Office.

Hancock 4-H Rifle Team takes fifth

In a Sub-District Rifle Match held recently, four county youths participated and placed fifth.

The team consists of Larry Koenenn, Michael Seal, Rhett Ladner and Leonard Koenenn.

The match was held at the Police Firing Range in Hattiesburg. Each shooter fired five shots from each of four positions - prone, standing, sitting and kneeling.

The team has now qualified to participate in state competition in June. The June match will be held in conjunction with State 4-H Congress at Mississippi State.

Future 4-H shooting sports contests will include rifle as well as archery, black powder, shotgun and hunting skills.

APPEARANCE IS A TEENAGE AGONY

For a young person going from the pre-teen to teenage years appearance can be a cause for agony.

Teens are often quick to find fault with their appearance because it doesn't fit into their ideas of looking perfect.

Extreme thinness, obesity, shortness, tallness, disproportion of figure and prominent physical characteristics such as a large nose are among the problems that may cause self-consciousness or emotional distress.

An adolescent who becomes self-conscious, non-communicative and down on life in general may want to remain home reading or watching TV for long periods. This isolation usually means less activity and more eating and these both contribute to overweight which intensify the physical appearance problem.

What's The Law? - Juvenile Rights and Responsibilities

LIBRARY DISPLAY—Savory Books, a resident of Kila, is shown with her collection of hand-woven baskets on display through the month of April at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock Library on US-90. Books, who studied basket weaving in Virginia uses many types of natural materials to make baskets. Included in the exhibit are various eggshells, woven baskets, market, cloth and heavy baskets.

Editor's Note: The following article is one of a series of articles published by the American Bar Association in cooperation with the observance of Law Day-USA May 1, 1987.

The American legal system has undertaken a major effort to redefine children's rights with respect to their parents, the state, and the juvenile justice system.

This continuing effort has seen changes in the basic concept of juvenile law, acknowledgement that children enjoy civil liberties and individual rights granted to all individuals under the Constitution, and the growth of legal advocacy for children who are victims of abuse and neglect either at the hands of their parents or in foster care.

Here is where the law stands today concerning questions of juvenile rights and responsibilities.

Q: First, what are the origins of juvenile law?

A: At the turn of the century, lawmakers determined that they should take young offenders out of the adult criminal justice system and place them in specialized juvenile courts.

The aim of juvenile law was to rehabilitate, rather than to punish. However, by the 1960s, it was perceived that this form of juvenile justice often was unfair and arbitrary because sentences varied widely and often were more severe than adults would have received for the same crime.

Further, the system deprived juveniles of their constitutional rights, such as a written notice of the charges, the right to a lawyer, and adequate time to prepare a defense. Changes began to be made in the juvenile justice system.

Q: How does a court decide if the rights of a child should prevail in a legal proceeding or if the rights of the parents should prevail?

A: This is one of the most difficult issues to resolve in juvenile justice. Various Supreme Court rulings have determined three precepts about children's rights that lower courts must follow in making their decisions.

The first is that parents have the primary responsibility to raise their children.

The second is that the state has responsibilities to children too, and can intervene and act as "parent" if the children are abused, neglected, abandoned, or their parents' lifestyles are considered by a judge to be inadequate or inappropriate for raising children.

The third aspect of children's rights is that as "people" they have rights of their own and as "individuals" they have rights in relation to the family and to the state.

Q: What rights does a juvenile have in court proceedings?

A: A 1967 Supreme Court decision in the case "In re Gault" found that juveniles are entitled to due process of law in court proceedings.

Their rights include timely notice of charges, the right to legal counsel, the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, and the right to confront their witnesses by cross-examination and to hear the sworn testimony of the complainant.

Q: How do juvenile rights differ from those granted to adults?

A: Adults still enjoy four rights that minors do not. These are the right to be tried before a jury rather than just a judge, to receive a grand jury indictment before being charged with a serious crime, to be released on bail while awaiting trial, and to have a public trial. Some states do, however, allow juveniles a jury trial if they choose to be tried as adults.

Q: What is "emancipation?"

A: Emancipation means that a child is given the legal status of an adult. Juveniles who are emancipated is granted for only one purpose, for example, selling real estate.

In other states, an emancipated child enjoys the full rights of an adult and can sign contracts, join the military, marry without parental consent, and be held responsible for his or her own legal and business affairs.

In 12 states, laws allow the courts to grant minors emancipation if they are self-sufficient and free from parental control and authority.

In other states, a child automatically becomes emancipated when he or she reaches the age of majority, 18 in most states.

Q: Do the rights of students enrolled in public schools differ from the rights of students in private schools?

A: Federal law provides the framework for the rights of students in public schools. The rights of private school students and their parents are governed by the contract between them and the school, which may be more strict or more lenient than federal law.

Q: Can public schools force students to recite prayers?

A: No. Students have the right to follow any religion or none at all. A school cannot interfere with this right by establishing or conducting religious exercises or by implementing policies that favor one religion over another or religion over nonreligion.

This is based on the 1982 Supreme Court ruling that a public school, as part of state government, must follow the First Amendment to the Constitution which states in part, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Q: Do students always enjoy freedom of expression and speech at school regardless of the effect of these activities on others?

A: No. Students who want to practice freedom of speech and expression are prohibited from doing so if they will disrupt the normal operation of school. Furthermore, school officials do not have to wait until their disruptive activity begins before taking action. They can stop students from carrying out a plan that sounds like it will be disruptive.

As long as students do not disrupt classwork or invade the rights of others, they have the right to express themselves orally or symbolically, however unpopular or critical of school or government policy they may be. The basis of this right is the case of "Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District," decided by the Supreme Court in 1969.

Q: Can a student be suspended from school without a hearing?

A: A student may be suspended from school without a hearing if his or her conduct endangers other students or seriously disrupts school.

However, the students must be given a hearing as soon as possible. If school officials want to suspend a student for less serious conduct, they must follow certain procedures that lead to a hearing before the suspension.

These procedures include oral or written notice of the charges, an explanation of the evidence to support the charges if the student denies them, and an opportunity for the student to tell his or her side of the story.

Do students have the right to see their school records?

A: Yes. In 1974, Congress passed the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, providing that students over the age of 18 or parents/guardians of those who are not yet 18 can review and inspect education records at schools that receive funds from the federal government.

Furthermore, the parent or student must be given an opportunity to request amendment and to challenge in a hearing the content of any records that they believe is misleading or inaccurate.

If the student or parent makes a reasonable request for an interpretation or explanation of the records, the school must provide it.

Q: What has the federal government done to ensure that handicapped children receive an education?

A: This is one area in which major advances have been made because of federal legislation passed during the '70s and upheld by judicial decisions.

Basically, the laws stipulate that the state must make available to every handicapped child a free public education appropriate to his or her needs.

USM biologists study roofing

HATTIESBURG—A $44,900 one-year contract for the study of roofing material deterioration by micro-organisms has been awarded to the Department of Biological Sciences at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Dr. Robert Taylor and Dr. R.D. Ellender, both of the USM Biological Sciences Department, are directing the project sponsored by Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, Mich.

The study is a continuation of a 1986 contract with Dow that convinced the researchers that micro-organisms are a major factor in the breakdown of roofing materials, according to Taylor.

He explained "exposure to the elements, ultra-violet, physical erosion and acid rains cause breakdown, but after the first year's study we were convinced that micro-organisms are one of the main reasons for breakdown."

Research will focus on the effects of the production of acids and bases by micro-organisms and the effect on the roofing membranes, Taylor added.

The roofing material being studied is a single-ply roofing membrane made of chlorinated polyethylene which, according to Taylor, looks much like a thin rubber sheet.

"We are looking at the chemical and mechanical effects of the micro-organisms on the membrane and the next phase will be to try to prevent the damage," Taylor said.
